Dear Mr. Marvel:

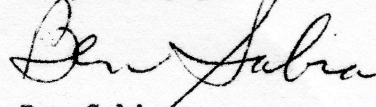

Because of the many unfounded claims of plagiarism asserted against music publishers, this company has made it an invariable rule that neither it nor its employees read or consider unsolicited literary material, musical compositions, lyrics, suggestions, or ideas of any nature whatsoever. We regret that we cannot depart from this rule in your instance.

We are therefore returning herewith, unread, the manuscript of your song(s) entitled:

"Each Tomorrow"

We appreciate your interest, however, and thank you for communicating with us.

Very truly yours,

Ben Sabia
